ABSTRAKT
Creative Director

In this quality, I accompany customers in the digitization and communication of their company.I have had the opportunity and pleasure to work for many companies, small and large sizes, participating in the creation of innovative applications and artistically and technically complex websites. These projects allowed me to deepen my knowledge and skills, both technical and artistic, and to improve my customer relations.

HETIC
Guest Speaker in Web Higher Education Schools

My taste for the sharing of knowledge logically brought me back to my former school HETIC to become a teacher of UX & UI Design, front development and also in new technologies like augmented, mixed and virtual reality.

≈ ABOUT ME

UX & UI Designer, Front Developper and more

Passionate about the world of the Web for several years, I begin as a self-taught designer. In order to deepen my knowledge and skills, I undertake a Bachelor's Degree at HETIC, a private higher education institution specialized in the Internet and recognized as one of the best schools in France and even the best according to «Le Figaro» in His record of 2013. It is three years later that I finish as the Best student of the class. This course allows me to alternate training and working so I quickly find a job with Abstrakt, a great known web agency based in Paris. Initially in a part-time as web designer, I became Creative Director thus enlarging my perimeter of skills and giving me the opportunity to manage projects in their entirety, from the first contact with the client to the final rendering. At the same time, I embarked on a freelance program and carried out numerous projects such as the creation of graphic identities, portfolio and e-commerce websites, from branding to interface design and development.
